

Lab 8 – Core Tags, Part 2

Add today's date (only the date), right above the header

    Today's Date:
    <fmt:formatDate type="date" value="${now}" />

<jsp:include page="header.jsp" />

Lab 8 – Core Tags, Part 2

In songs.jsp, replace the existing date with a new date and time in “long style”

<c:set var="now" value="<%=new java.util.Date()%>" />
Songs Available for Download as of <fmt:formatDate type="both" dateStyle="long"
    timeStyle="long" value="{now}" />

Lab 8 – Core Tags, Part 2

Refactor the code to get rid of the if/else scriptlet and replace it with choose/when/otherwise tags

Note: don't throw the exception anymore, just print out a message that there are no songs available at this time

Check the output to ensure everything works properly after your refactor

Our customer wants each song id to always be 5 digits. We are to pad the number with leading zeros if necessary.

Again, run your application and check the functionality

The screenshot shows a web browser window with the address bar displaying 'localhost:8081/Lab08_CoreTags_PartTwo/SongServlet'. The page content includes the Coursera logo, the text 'Current Stock Price: 25.48', and 'Songs Available for Download as of December 11, 2021 12:49:10 PM EST'. Below this is a table with 5 rows and 3 columns. The first column contains 5-digit IDs (00101 to 00105), the second column contains artist names, and the third column contains song titles. A red octagonal 'STOP' sign is positioned at the bottom right of the browser window.
